Another year has passed, and again we had a good year and have maintained an OSHA incident rate lower than the industry average. There are, however, some operations within our company that have not done as well as others, and could stand improvement. In the coming year we hope to continue where we have done well, and to improve where we have not. Do we need a change in attitude about safety, in order to change our experience with injuries? I think so, and so I am asking you to re-assess your own attitude toward safe work practices. Are your work practices safe, just because you have always done it that way? Do you need to be more open to better ideas? Are you protecting yourself and your co-workers the best you know how? Please join me in working smarter, to insure the continued well being of you and all of those you live and work with every day. I know it will be well worth our effort.
